Life of Musa (AS)

Musa (AS) was born in a time of oppression for the Israelites, in Egypt. The Pharaoh, fearing a prophecy that a child from the Israelites would bring an end to his rule, ordered the killing of all male newborns of the Israelites.

Musa (AS) was born under these harsh conditions, and his mother was fearful for his life. But, as per Allah's command, she placed him in a basket and set him afloat on the Nile River. Allah guided the basket to the palace of Pharaoh, where it was discovered by Pharaoh's wife, Asiya. She took pity on the child and decided to adopt him, raising him as her own.

Musa (AS) grew up in the palace, living alongside the Pharaoh but unaware of his true origins. As an adult, Musa (AS) was drawn to the suffering of his people and was eventually guided by Allah to lead the Israelites out of Egypt.

Musa (AS) confronted Pharaoh, demanding the release of the Israelites, but Pharaoh rejected the message. This led to a series of miraculous events, including the parting of the Red Sea, through which Musa (AS) led the Israelites to safety, while Pharaoh and his army were drowned.

Musa (AS) also received the Torah, the holy scripture, from Allah on Mount Sinai. Throughout his life, Musa (AS) faced many challenges, but his unwavering faith in Allah enabled him to fulfill his mission.

Musa (AS) remains one of the greatest prophets in Islam, known for his leadership, patience, and unwavering trust in Allah's will. His story is an inspiration to all believers, showing that with faith and perseverance, victory is assured.
